Lectured upon Japan.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning the choir consisted of C. W. Horne, Mrs. Frank Kimball, Mrs. L. H. Smiley and H. L. Horne. The music was excellent and the whole service of more than usual interest. In the evening the lecture on Japan was attended by a large number of people and the lecture was listened to with the greatest of interest. The progress of the past fifty years, since the opening of the country following the visit of Commodore Perry, was traced, this advancement being marked in every line including the educational and moral developments. These will be more largely touched upon in a second lecture in the series and the third of which will be on Russia and the Greek church. The interest of the world is centered on these lands and information about them comes very timely.

First Ball a Success.
The first ball of the season, which was given by the local Castle of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, on Tuesday evening, was very successful. The gallery was filled with spectators and there were all who could comfortably dance upon the floor. The people from Auburn, members of the Commandery and Temple, together with their friends, came on a special train, arriving at 7:30.

At half past eight the Commandery drill team consisting of 21 men, marched on the floor and gave a drill which was even better than the expectations of those present and met with frequent applause. In their black uniforms with white plumed chapeau, baldric, belt and swords they presented a fine appearance, and the half hour they drilled went through marching figures, some of them intricate and handsome, and among the most striking being circles, revolving wheels and the monogram of the order, K. G. E., sword exercises, and kneeling exercises. Every movement was made in perfect time, and certainly the Commandery deserve high praise for the excellent work. A man prominent in societies told the ADVERTISER man, "I have been in this sort of work over thirty years and this is as good as any I have seen, yes, I will say better, and I have seen lots of them."

Immediately after this, sixteen ladies of Wayburn Temple staff came upon the floor, in their varied colored flowing robes and student caps. This drill more than twenty minutes in length, consisted of marching movements to music, with no audible command or visible signal of any kind; and the time, step and alignment were very fine. Several members of the Castle who saw this drill in Auburn in June have been very enthusiastic, and no one will now say their praise was too great.

Dancing began shortly after the drill. The grand march was led by George W. Winslow and wife, and there were between eighty and ninety couples upon the floor. Besides the Commandery men and ladies in uniform, members of Oxford Castle wore the uniform cap, and made a good appearance. The order of dances was a well selected one of fourteen numbers.

At eleven o'clock recess was taken and dancers to the number of eighty went to the supper at Concert Hall which was served by the ladies of the Universalist Circle. Folks were rather hungry and did ample justice to the excellent supper spread. We won't say how many pieces of pie one of Oxford's past chiefs placed away, and how many tarts the little man from Auburn ate, but there was enough to eat and to spare. The party broke up shortly after one in the morning and voted it one of the finest dancing parties and a splendid opening of the dancing season.

Several dislocated wires, Sunday afternoon caused some excitement near the ADVERTISER office. About the same time the trolley wire broke loose from its support near the Cummings home; this support was fixed the next day. No damage was done.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.
Lectured upon Japan.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning the choir consisted of C. W. Horne, Mrs. Frank Kimball, Mrs. Luella Smiley and H. L. Horne. The music was excellent and the whole service of more than usual interest. In the evening the lecture on Japan was attended by a large number of people and the lecture was listened to with the greatest of interest. The progress of the past fifty years, since the opening of the country following the visit of Commodore Perry, was traced, this advancement being marked in every line including the educational and moral departments. These will be more largely touched upon in a second lecture in the series and the third of which will be on Russia and the Greek church. The interest of the world is centered on these lands and information about them comes very timely.

OCTOBER 7, 1904, NORWAY AND SOUTH PARIS, MAINE. VOLUME XXXV

First Ball a Success.
The first ball of the season, which was given by the local Castle of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, on Tuesday evening, was very successful. The gallery was filled with spectators and there were all who could comfortably dance upon the floor. The people from Auburn, members of the Commandery and Temple, together with their friends, came on a special train, arriving at 7.30.

At half past eight the Commandery drill team consisting of 21 men, marched on the floor and gave a drill which was even better than the expectations of those present and met with frequent applause. In their black uniforms with white plumed chapeau, baldric, belt and swords they presented a fine appearance, and in the half hour they drilled went through marching figures, some of them intricate and handsome, and some of them most striking being circles, revolving wheels and the monogram of the order, K. G. E., sword exercises, and kneeling exercises. Every movement was made in perfect time, and certainly the Commandery deserve high praise for the excellent work. A man prominent in the crowd told the ADVERTISER man, "I have been in this sort of work over thirty years and this is as good as any I have seen, yes, I will say better, and I have seen lots of them."

Immediately after this, sixteen ladies of Wayburn Temple staff came upon the floor, in their varied colored flowing robes and student caps. This drill more than twenty minutes in length, consisted of marching movements to music, with no audible command or visible signal of any kind; at the time, step and alignment were very fine. Several members of the Castle who saw this drill in Auburn in June have been very enthusiastic, and no one will now say their praise was too great.

Dancing began shortly after the drill. The grand march was led by George W. Winslow and wife, and there were between eighty and ninety couples upon the floor. Besides the Commandery men and ladies in uniform, members of Oxford Castle wore the uniform cap, and made a good appearance. The order of dances was a well selected one of fourteen numbers.

At seven o'clock recess was taken and dancers to the number of eighty went to the supper at Concert Hall which was served by the ladies of the Universalist Circle. Folks were rather hungry and did ample justice to the excellent supper spread. We won't say how many second lectures in the series and the third of which will be on Russia and the Greek church. The interest of the world is centered on these lands and information about them comes very timely.

"There Little Girl."

"There little girl, don't cry."
Your heart has been broken I know;
But pick up the pieces and wipe your eyes dry.
He might have been constant you know
Until he loved for life, and then thrown you by.
"There little girl, don't cry."
"There little girl, don't cry."
You're betrayed and forsaken I know,
Laugh, little girl, to the world's scoffs by.
Aye, tho' life's happiness go,
Your breath is wasted each time you sigh.
"There little girl, don't cry."
The market is crowded with love,
Sold to the first who will buy you know.
For you're sure to get cheated you know,
For your tarnished heart is a price too high
To give for the best. Let the world roll by.
"There little girl, don't cry."

Submission.

O, would that the beautiful story,
Now driving to the village,
Had been told me in life's morning
By the lips I love dearest to-day.
Life's day has been long in passing,
The duties it brought me in passing,
And now, as I pass to the evening,
To the morrow, I turn in sadness.
But the morning I would not live over,
And the midnight I wish not to sink;
For the morning sun at its shining
Brings me more pleasure than pain.
So as God willed in the morning,
And at noon continued his plan,
Now that the evening advances
I will meet it the best I can.
I will not regret that the morning
Brought me that which I wish now,
But unto the will of the Father
In patient submission I bow.

Back to Old Norway.

It is always delightful to go back to the scene of our childhood. It was my good fortune to visit Norway, situated near Lake Pennesseewassee, which is now becoming quite a resort. There are at the present time more than 30 cottages on the shore. Several steamers are on the lake during the summer season. Norway is bounded on the north by Greenwood and Albion, west by Waterville and Harrison, south by Oxford and Otsfield, east by Paris.

Norway has had several hard fires which have changed the appearance of the streets. Ten years ago a fire which started in the rear of the Open House, destroyed buildings on both sides of the street for some distance beyond the Congregational church. This has changed the appearance of the town very much, especially in the lower section of the village, where I used to visit. I refer to the residence of Austin Holmes who occupied the house on the opposite side of the street from that where his daughter, Mrs. Herman Horne, resides.

Norway has ever stood high as a town of enterprise, largely owing to its old settlers. In looking over an old history, written by David Noyes in 1850, I find an account of the perils and vicissitudes against which the early settlers fought. In fact my memory recalls the Denisons who did a thriving mercantile business. Mr. Holmes' family, Mr. Burnham who was a most vigilant detective, the Browns, Noyes, Mills, Rusts, Cobbs, etc.—Sylvanus Cobb of whom we have all heard and read.

I remember when a child of visiting Norway with my father, who came to exchange pulpits with Rev. P. B. Wilcox, a most devoted and pious man, but exceedingly absent minded. He preached here and at Norway Center. One morning he started for church and was half way there when his wife discovered he had left his sermon. I think she sent a messenger with it. I remember Rev. T. T. Mery who was here later. We have entertained these pastors many times at my home.

I wish to say that my parents were always, I think, entertained at Austin Holmes'. Mrs. Holmes was Martha Hight of Gorham, Me., who once taught in Gorham Seminary. A most interesting woman, a constant in conversation, and a joy of the old school.

Where the Old Ladies' Home now is was Mr. Horne's old home, an enterprising business man who has sons here in business. Messrs. Isaac and Lucius Denison had a large thriving dry goods business and understood none of their immediate families are residing here at the present time.

More than twenty years ago I attended a session of the Oxford County Musical Association. Mr. Koseck of Portland was conductor. This is a thing of the past as the Music Festival Overture conducted by W. R. Chapman exists in its place.

Norway has a prosperous high school which graduates a class every year. The principal of last year has gone to a larger field of labor and more abundant salary.

The water power furnished by Lake Pennesseewassee runs several manufacturing plants. Cummings Bros. have a grist and saw mill as well as a furniture establishment, and the Electric Light and Power plant which furnishes most of the power used in the village. Norway has a Savings Bank on a reliable basis.

I was quite surprised on visiting Noyes store drug to meet Mr. Kimball. I met some years ago at a musical convention at Mechanic Falls. He still keeps up his interest in music and is leader of a band which gives fine music. Dr. H. P. Jones, the dentist has a large business. I remember his father, who filled my teeth when a child.

A walk to the top of Pike's Hill and one gets a view of the whole town. The sun is setting and the clouds and the are most charming. Lake Pennesseewassee is at the foot of the mountain. Several small islands covered with trees in the distance. A cluster of houses and boats which they tell us in Norway Center, and farm houses scattered about make a charming picture.

I took the electric cars to South Paris. I was surprised to see the new buildings and residences on the way. South Paris has improved exceedingly since I used to visit there, which is more than 20 years ago. I well remember Mr. C. W. Jones, the dentist has a large business. I remember his father, who filled my teeth when a child.

new building. I visited the County fair, which Neil Burgess has made famous and had represented to Boston audiences, yet it had phases of it. There are the patent medicine man or woman (twas in this case) the jewelry man, the man with "dry filling" for cakes and pies, the balloon man, popcorn and peanut man, etc., etc., "ad infinitum." W. J. Wheeler is president. Many improvements have been made during the past year. The grounds are well kept, new gates between the "pike" and grand stand. The track for the trotting is smooth and after each race is cleaned down. Some fine horses were on exhibition and the races were highly exciting, while the band played between the heats. The rain was disagreeable and many left early for their homes.

Thursday the rain came in torrents which compelled the management to defer the program for that day to Friday, which closed Oxford County Fair for this year. All voted it a success and the largest attendance of any year before. The eating houses well patronized and the meals well served. Much credit is due President W. J. Wheeler for his earnest efforts to make it a success. A. M. E.

WEST PORTER.

Large Crop of Apples.
Business is rather dull just now except the barrel business, which is good. There is a demand for collecting their barrels for their apples at the present time, as apple picking is at hand and there is a large crop in this town to harvest if the cold weather holds off.

Potato crop is very light through town.

Mrs. Jennie H. Libby is on the sick list with a very bad cold.

Herbert Weeks is at home for a short time visiting his mother and brother Dan and other friends.

Frank Sargent and wife of South Hill made Joseph Dougan a call the 25th and Wm. Locklin and wife.

R. Libby and son went to Ossipee, N. H., Saturday, looking after an engine for the purpose of manufacturing apple barrels and sawing shingles.

Roscoe Sawyer, wife and mother, Mrs. Betsey Sawyer, called the 25th, on R. Libby and wife, and to make the old place a visit where she spent so many years of her life and reared a large family of children.

Joseph Douglass went to Effingham, N. H., one day last week to see an engine as he intends to purchase one. The water will not run his mill all the time through the dry season and it bothers him in his business.

A cold wave passed through our town this week a heavy frost killing everything and freezing apples that laid on the ground. Water froze in tubs nearly half an inch. It was the coldest that has been known for a great number of years at this time of year, so say the old people. A good rain followed but crops were all out of the way of frost.

Mrs. Fairbanks tells how neglect of warning symptoms will soon prostrate a woman. She thinks woman's safeguard is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a cure. I did not heed the warnings of headaches, ovarian pains, and general weakness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully, according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful, I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. Yours very truly, MRS. MAX FAIRBANKS, 210 South 7th St., Minneapolis, Minn." (Mrs. Fairbanks is one of the most successful and highest placed traveling saleswomen in the West.)—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Reception in Lowell.

Another pleasant event took place at No. 242 Appleton St., Lowell, Mass., the home of Mrs. Anna Jones and Mrs. Florence M. McAllister, formerly of Oxford, when a partying reception was tendered Martin J. Kennedy, a promising young business man of Lowell, who is about to leave on an extended trip to Canada, where he has invested heavily in timber land.

Among those present were some of Lowell's leading business men, including John W. Billingsley, a heavy real estate owner and merchant; Messrs. Brockway and Emerson, who are interested in one of the largest laundries in the State; Joseph Goff, who holds a responsible position with a large corporation; also Messrs. King, Van Etten, Whalen and Capt. Carr.

Mrs. Jones served one of the dinners for which she has become famous in coming to Lowell, and Mrs. McAllister entertained the party in a very pleasant manner at the piano. During the evening Mr. Kennedy with an elegant automobile, Mr. Kennedy responded in his usual jovial manner and said if any one present, ladies included, would get married he would furnish the lumber to build a house. After Mr. Van Etten had taken several flashlight pictures of the party, a vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Kennedy by Mrs. McAllister for the kind manner in which they had been entertained.

To Live in Peace.

A woman may accept a man in haste, but man chooses his wife at leisure. It is to be supposed that when a man asks a woman to marry him he has decided that he cannot live without her. If he can't live without her it is certainly his duty to do his best to live with her. This is not always so easy a thing to do. Here are a few simple rules for the wise husband:

If your wife frowns at you smile at her.
If she smiles at you laugh with her.
If she is angry soothe her.
If she is gracious thank her.
If she is wise praise her.
If she is economical commend her.
If she is extravagant explain to her.
If she sacrifices her pleasures for you be generous with her.
If she is beautiful appreciate her.
If she cooks well compliment her.
If she is lonely stay at home with her.
If she is tired tend her.
If she doubts you be frank with her.
If she grieves be tender with her.
If she is hysterical ignore her.
If she is flighty be firm with her.
If she deceives you be harsh with her.
If she is saucy kiss her.
If she is good adore her.

Under the title of "The Splendor of the Wealthy Russians," Thorndike Collier, in "The Twentieth Century Home" for October, gives a most interesting account of the court of Russia, whose magnificence is the wonder of the century. No people on earth are so extravagant, so lavish, so imperially magnificent, as the high-class Russians. Their palaces are the most superb in the world, their jewels the most costly, their dress the most Cumberland and Oxford Union Pomona Grange.

Cumberland and Oxford Union Pomona Grange held its 45th session with the Times of Gloucester, Mass., on Sept. 22nd. The day proved to be very inclement, being the coldest September day of which there is any record. Very many of the farmers, who had planned to attend this meeting, were obliged to remain at home and huddle for all that they were worth in the attempt to secure their crops against the freeze, which they were quite sure was coming on the following night.

Nearly 75 braved the elements and were present at the forenoon session, some of them having ridden twenty miles or more. The meeting in the forenoon was held in the Casino, which had been engaged on the supposition that the day would be warm and pleasant. No fire could be had in the building on account of its unfinished condition, and the strong north wind sweeping down the lake drove the cold into it to such an extent that those who attended the forenoon meeting had to sit with their wraps and overcoats on, and then suffer very much from this. But like good Grangers they stuck by and went through with the work in good shape. There was the regular routine work and the fifth degree was conferred upon a class of six.

The bountiful dinner, which was prepared at noon, served in some measure to break the force of the cold, and the afternoon meeting was held in the Methodist church, where everything was warm and comfortable. Fully 100 were present and the meeting was very lively and interesting. There was music and singing by the Naples Grange choir, and Bro. Irving W. Barker sang two songs with autoharp accompaniment.

Next came the discussion of the following question:—"What is the duty of the farmers in the management of local affairs, including the churches, schools and roads?" The discussion was opened by Bro. J. E. Barker, lecturer pro tem, who claimed that all farmers should take a lively interest in these things as they were all of great benefit to the community, and spoke in particular of the advantage of good roads. Brother Barker, who is a Methodist clergyman, spoke quite eloquently, incidentally giving some of his experience at farming, for which occupation he has a great love. Brother Charles of Fryeburg, unmercifully scored the way in which the road machines were used in the making and repairing of the highways, and his remarks were endorsed by other brothers. Brother Monahan of Harrison favored the study of agriculture in the common schools, giving some of the reasons why it should be done. Brother J. E. Barker endorsed the views of Brother Monahan, and Brother G. M. Burnell opposed them, saying that it was not right to force the study of agriculture upon those who wished to spend their time on something else.

The summer boarder question was next discussed and all agreed that they were a benefit to the farmers by increasing their income, making a better market for their produce and bringing many good people into the community. The next meeting is to be held with Mt. Ema Grange, North Baldwin, on Thursday, October 20th.

Put your heart into your work, and you will get joy out of it. Let the money consideration be secondary. The first thing is to be true—to labor with a composed, invincible energy, until it becomes a labor of love and gladness.

Perils of Land and Sea.

Captain Willmet's Remarkable Escape Shows What to do in Time of Trouble.

For many years, Captain Willmet, says the Times of Gloucester, Mass., was one of the best known seamen in the Gloucester Fleet. The sea and its dangers had no terror for him, but the catarrhal troubles with which he suffered for fifteen years made him dread the nights at sea, for he had to walk the cabin floor, being unable to lie down and sleep, account of the constant catarrhal dropping.

Captain Willmet went to two different hospitals for treatment, but could get no lasting benefit. He constantly raised yellow and green phlegm and his trouble became so unbearable and nauseating that he was ashamed to go out in the street. When despairing of ever getting out for him, and trying it before going to bed, he enjoyed the first whole night's sleep for ten years. Captain Willmet says "I have used less than two bottles of Hymel and have been cured by the remedy." My friends ask me what is responsible for my improvement, and I tell them Hymel, which has given me full and complete recovery.

Captain Willmet's experience shows our readers what to do in time of catarrhal trouble—use Hymel. This remarkable treatment kills the germs of catarrh and cures, Norway Drug Store sells Hymel under their personal guarantee, refund the money if it does not give quick relief.

EAST STONEHAM.

Injured Her Eye.
Last Thursday, Miss R. N. Butters, who is teaching school at West Stoneham, met with an accident by running her face against the corner of a shingle which was sticking in the wall of a building and hurting one of her eyes quite badly. Had the shingle hit a little higher her eye would have been injured so as to destroy the sight. For a while she could not see with the injured eye but by prompt treatment is enabled to resume her school duties this week.

It is said that potatoes are rotting quite badly in some fields.

Some of our townfolks are planning to attend the Waterford fair.

A good cheerful looking fire is very pleasant these autumn evenings.

The autumn foliage never looked more lovely than it did the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Bartlett have returned from the Fair at St. Louis.

Mr. Meserve of Lovell has been here visiting his daughters, Mrs. C. Stearns and Mrs. Edith Merrill.

We understand that Addison Holt of Lynchville has bought the farm in Waterford formerly owned by the late Joshua Saunders.

Some of the milk cows in this vicinity have eaten so many apples that it has affected their milk. Lots of older will be made no doubt this fall. We can see little need of making acid vinegar or vinegar from apples.

Mrs. Georgia Jackson of Westbrook and her cousin, Mrs. Black, visited relatives here last week, returning home last Thursday. While here they visited Albany Basins and other scenes well known in the days of childhood and early youth.

Very cool windy weather for so early in the season. In some of the orchards many of the apples on the trees have been so frost bitten as to render them nearly worthless for keeping any length of time. The leaves are dropping off fast.

The first chartered grange was Fredonia grange, No. 1, of New York. The first state grange was that of Minnesota, organized Feb. 22, 1893. The first session of the national grange was on April 13, 1899.

The weather for the opening of the fifty-fourth exhibition, Tuesday, was all that could be asked. There was a larger number in attendance than is usual the first day. The races were:

The booths and shows cover a large portion of the ground and accommodations for feeding both man and beast are ample. The exhibit in stock of all kinds, working oxen, town teams, etc., is fully up to the standard. John E. Fendexter's show of Jersey stock had many admirers.

FARM-FIELD AND GARDEN

A THREE HORSE EVENER.

Methods of Overcoming the Side Draft in Three Horse Teaming.

Teamsters in my section who desire to use three horses generally adopt the heavy thills shown in Fig. 1, says A. F. Shull of Ohio in American Agriculturist. The weight of the thills is borne entirely by the middle horse, as they are hung in hooks attached to a broad strap over the back. The middle singletree swings from the same pin as the doubletree for the outer horses.

Where it is necessary to use a tongue divide the doubletree into thirds and place the pin one-third the length from the end next the two horses. Then give the near horse a longer portion of the tongue chains or, as in western wagons, of the neck yoke. Even then it is necessary to build a short arm at the side of the tongue (Fig. 2), but it is so short that side draft is nearly eliminated. Such a plan will be quite effective in two wheeled implements where the load is behind the axle, tending to keep the tongue straight. It may be added that side draft is further lessened by hitching as far as possible from the load and using a long tongue. For tongueless vehicles and implements Fig. 3 shows a very good even hitch. Its construction is made plain by the drawing. In attaching the middle singletree be careful that the iron at the inner ends of the small doubletrees are pivoted so as to move sidewise freely, as the distance between the ends is variable.

A THREE HORSE EVENER.

Suggestions in Road Building.

It is desirable for many reasons to preserve the natural dirt road along side and parallel to the surfaced road where possible.

A common but erroneous impression prevails that when a road is once macadamized, graveled or surfaced with any hard material it is then finished and must endure forever. An improved road needs constant attention, and unless this is given in a systematic manner like the railroad the road will rut, ravel, disintegrate and go to ruin.

It seems wise to recommend, particularly for level country where material is scarce, the building of macadam and gravel roads from eight to ten feet wide. Some will say: "These roads are not wide enough. How will two loads of hay pass on an eight foot road?" The answer is: "Two loads of hay seldom meet. Usually both are going to the same market at about the same time. So it is useless to construct a road to meet a condition which seldom arises." Of course these widths are only for strictly country roads, upon level lands, where it is easy to turn out. On main highways, where travel is extensive, a width of at least sixteen feet should be maintained.-R. W. Richardson.

Preparing Land For Wheat.

Where the ground is to be plowed for wheat it is essential that it be done early in the season even if the ground is dry and the plowing a little hard. I have seen men wait because the ground was dry and hard for a rain until late in the fall, and about nine times out of ten they fail to get a crop. There is no doubt that the average farmer grows that requires more skill than plant wheat. The nature of the wheat plant must be studied and then everything possible be done to make its abiding place congenial. The seed bed for wheat must be fine, firm and covered with a blanket of fine earth in which to deposit the seed. These instructions have been given so often that it seems almost useless to repeat them.

The amount of work to be done up on a field after it has been plowed will to a certain extent be governed by the weather, but seldom is a field worked too much. It is a good plan after the field looks as if it is in perfect condition to give it an extra working. It is usually this extra work that makes the top bushels the next harvest.-Cor. National Stockman.

The Path of the Ginseng Grower.

The Chinese are said to believe that ginseng will prolong life and make disease well nigh impossible. The ginseng at least cannot cure itself. The wild plants are quite free from disease, but under cultivation wilts, rots and blights attack it. A recent Cornell bulletin describes some of these diseases and also claims that insects trouble the plants. So the path of the ginseng grower is not all lined with gold. There seems to be little help yet for diseased plants.-Rural New Yorker.

The deer crop is being harvested and anything is in danger which the excited hunter thinks might possibly be a deer.

Hall Exhibits.

The hall display was undoubtedly one of the finest for many years, the fruit especially being very abundant. The Granges made no exhibit and thus a very interesting feature was missing. In the hall was a fortune teller, an exhibit of 84 war views, realistic in the extreme. H. Barron of Norway exhibited his newly prepared pie filling, and the method of fixing it for use. It seems an excellent preparation.

H. S. Hastings of Newry had about every kind of orchard and garden produce, canned fruits and pickles. Slightly smaller in number was the display of Frank A. Brown of River View Farm. This display included some very fine corn. E. P. Grover of Maple Lane Farm showed 26 varieties of apples, 2 of pears, 7 of potatoes, 3 of peas, and specimens of each variety of garden produce.

WATERBURY.

A Fight Saved a Life.

Two precious kids hearing that a milk white of albino deer had been seen in the woods of Waterbury, and declared their intention of bringing him down, saying they had not much fear of the law, trusting that they could get him into the trap before being caught. After proceeding some half a mile, they espied a white animal behind a clump of bushes. "There he is," exclaimed No. one. "Give me the gun, please," said No. two. "Shoot," said No. one. "I'm going to shoot alone," said No. two. A clinch, a squabble and a few swear words, and bang went the gun, then Joe Haskell's pretty white calf came prancing into the open pasture.

Sweet corn of course was injured by frost, but we are informed they have a way of doctoring such with sugar and sugar chemicals to disguise all defects.

We think the deer hunters have to travel some distance to find game, as the amount of target practice is generally understood as danger signals by these timorous creatures who won't be close to the more remote quarters.

Fluence Stanley, a bright interesting girl of twelve years, while entering the schoolroom in a hurried manner, fell upon the doorsteps and so badly injured her legs as to render her insensible for a long time. No bones were broken, neither was any particular place found badly injured. She is better and about home now.

Most farmers are about their harvesting. Potatoes are quite good, with some occasional specks of dry rot. Apples are like the old deacon's firkin of butter. In some localities they are worthless for anything but cider, being frozen black and soft. In others they are good to eat, but inside are black and soft. But a considerable portion of the orchards, especially on the hills, are entirely uninjured by frost.

Fortunately the horses behaved beautifully and beyond the considerable damage to the vehicles no one suffered any injury. Mr. Hardy procured a wagon from Mr. Lewis and resumed his homeward way and the man from Paris left his wreckage by the roadside and continued his journey afoot leading his horse. Economy in Baking.

There is more dependent upon the baking powder, so far as economy in baking biscuit and cake is concerned, than in any other one thing.

The baking powder that will make the most of the finest and the most healthful food is the most economical.

The cheap alum baking powders average about five per cent. of leavening gas. Therefore it will take three times as much alum powder to raise the same cake or biscuit as it does of the Royal cake powder, for instance, which is a cream of tartar powder with three times the leavening strength, so the actual cost with the alum powder is the greatest. Further than this, however, the cream of tartar powder makes the finest kind of food, while the alum powders frequently fail when all the eggs, flour and butter used are wasted.

The greatest economy in the use of a baking powder like the Royal is in the healthfulness of the food it makes. It saves in doctor's bills many times its cost over alum powders.

The Royal Baking Powder, as every housewife knows, is always to be relied upon. It is one of the greatest aids she has. She is always able with the least trouble to make the very finest biscuits, cakes, muffins and crusts. Many a reputation has been made by the delicious trip to St. Louis.

Dr. B. A. Tracy and family and Miss Freeman recently spent a few days at Birch Brook pond.

Mrs. Abbott, wife of Rev. A. A. Abbott of Dixfield, was buried Sept. 30th. She had a long and painful illness.

WEST PARIS.

Left His Robe.

When T was a boy I attended a meeting at the district schoolhouse. The minister was a traveling evangelist, and during his service to show the lack of interest people took in religious affairs, he mentioned the case of the man with the muck-rake, who never so much as looked up when the Lord went by, being so greatly absorbed in his business. This meeting stirred up a local preacher to renewed activity, and he appointed a meeting at the same place over which he would officiate. During his discourse he mentioned the muck-rake incident. Later on some one made inquiry if the evangelist was to return, when a man who had attended the meeting replied, "I think he is, since he left his muck-rake for elder _____ to use."

Fall Millinery Display.

Friday and Saturday were display days for fall and winter millinery at Mrs. V. W. Hills' and Mrs. G. A. Allen's, Norway.

There are always some prevailing colors and this year they are green, burnt orange, mahogany and brown. The hats are some large and some small, and with high crowns and low crowns. There are close bonnets for elderly ladies, these have ties, and toques for younger ladies who do not wish to wear hats. Breasts, tips and medium length feathers are used. Chenille and shirred silk and ribbon are on everything. Broad soft ribbons make favorite trimmings and shirred rosettes, feather, ostrich and wired ribbon pom-poms, long pointed buckles in gilt and changeable shades are this season's novelties.

Mrs. Hills' window was in brown and mahogany as principal colors. "Marie" was dressed in brown with a brown velvet picture hat. The wire of the frame was wound with chenille, two shades of shirred ribbon rosettes, long feather, pointed gilt ornament.

Mrs. Allen's window was black, burnt orange and white. The "figure" was dressed in black with a large black velvet picture hat, high crown with two long feathers that droop back gracefully on either side the crown starting from ornaments on the rim.

We noticed a few of the hats. There was one made entirely of feather breast in the green and brown shades; a mahogany hat in three shades, jets and bird of paradise; a sage green chenille and ribbon combined, high crown and foliage; a black hat with shirred silk top, chenille facing, tucked rosettes with chenille centers, white and black breast; a toque in two shades of stamped brown velvet, bird of paradise; a white fancy plush combined with white shirred silk, long white feather drooping over the side, loops of ribbon standing up around the crown; an envelope hat, very high at left side, chenille facing, changeable ornaments, two feathers from the right side back, pointed crown and rim; a royal blue hat, shaded feathers, and ornaments, chenille in rosettes; a large hat in old blue fancy velvet with white feather; a mottled plush hat with light blue velvet facing, light blue bow in back, long light blue feather from the bow towards the front; a hat in shades of green, shaded green caccades and shaded chenille and foliage crown; a brown velvet hat with shirred chenille and ribbon, three shades of tips; a white chenille and silk with narrow black velvet ribbon and black bird of paradise; a red velvet hat with ribbon plated standing round the crown, wired pom-pom.

There was a pretty black beaver child's hat trimmed with pink ribbon; a red child's hat, shirred chenille facing and ribbon, wide ribbon ties.

The sailor shapes have large low crowns and these are made even wider by the trimming. The rims are broader in the front than the back.

Other ideas, more or less new, are shirred silk to form leaves; black shirred and standing up around crown; feather bands standing up around crown; chenille heads as ornaments; high close back up over the crown that form a part of the hats; large Gainsboroughs with broad crowns; a combination of mahogany, burnt orange and brown in narrow folds. Other colors used are terra cotta, mode shades and castor shades.
